

Student Biosecurity Advisor – 12-Month Placement

Purpose: To provide a structured 12-month placement within Livetec's Livestock Protect Services team, combining practical, farm-facing experience with support across biosecurity, client, digital, training and operational activities.

What you'll do

- Support the Biosecurity and Key Accounts team with client preparation, meeting coordination, follow-up actions and record keeping.
- Join experienced Biosecurity Advisors on farm visits and assist with site information, biosecurity plans, reports and practical recommendations.
- Research livestock health, disease risks, legislation and industry guidance, summarising findings for the wider team.
- Support our Livestock Protect digital platform through data entry, record checking, user support and feedback gathering.
- Assist with training, webinars, agricultural events and the preparation of presentations and supporting materials.
- Work with the Operations team during the busy season to gain supervised on-farm experience of emergency response and avian influenza depopulation.
- Take an active role in placement objectives, development reviews and cross-functional projects.

What you'll bring

- Currently studying a relevant degree with a placement year, such as agriculture, animal science, veterinary biosciences, livestock production, biosecurity or agri-business.
- A genuine interest in livestock farming, animal health, welfare, disease prevention and biosecurity, with a proactive approach to travel, farm visits and practical operational work.
- Clear, professional communication skills and confidence working with farmers, clients and colleagues.
- Good organisation, IT skills and attention to detail, with the ability to manage agreed tasks accurately.

Role requirements

- Location: Hybrid Working | Livetec HQ in Silsoe, with farm and client visits
